The Delta in Crisis: What you need to Know about our Water Delivery System

September 13, 2007 2:00 – 3:30 PM

Chabot Room

Embassy Suites Hotel

1345 Treat Blvd., Walnut Creek

The Delta delivers drinking water to two out of every three Californians (23 million people), and is the state's largest watershed area supporting many endangered species. In the Bay Area, one-third of our residents depend on Delta water, while power and gas lines, road and rail infrastructure all run through this critical watershed area. However, the Delta is vulnerable as flooding and earthquakes threaten to cause aging levees to fail. In June, the dramatic decline in fish populations resulted in court actions to shut down water deliveries for nine days, underscoring the urgency for State action. Last year the Legislature and Governor Schwarzenegger established the State's Delta Vision Blue Ribbon Task Force to recommend near and long term actions to protect the ecology of the Delta and the State's water supply. Join us to hear from regional and state leaders on what is being recommended and the importance of regional consensus and advocacy to protect the Delta and our primary water delivery system.
